

Bubble Buddy

Hi there! I'm your Bubble Buddy. Use me to grate organic soap bars instead of buying all kinds of liquid soap in plastic bottles. Now don't get me wrong, plastic is a really cool modern material – used in the right way and in the right place. Like me, for instance: recycled plastic! But humans are throwing away so much plastic which ends up in our sewage, our rivers, and seas. And that's not cool at all. Together, you and I can cut down on plastic bottles in your home. Isn't that a 'grate' start?

Bubble Buddy is made from recycled plastic and available in 8 soapy colours. Packed in a gift box designed by Rachel Sender and an organic soap bar, he makes a fun gift for yourself or anyone else that aims to use less plastic.

Includes one bar of cleaning soap. Use the Bubble Buddy grate to make some flakes that easily dissolve into soapy water for pretty much all your household chores; dishes, laundry, kitchen, bathroom, floors & windows. This soap even works with really dirty pots! The package of the soaps is designed by Sue Doeksen.

Bubble Buddy was designed by Foekje Fleur in the Netherlands. She designed it for Goodtogive and part of the proceeds go to Sea Shepherd. To truly thrive, marine wildlife needs safe sanctuaries to feed, mate and raise their young without pollution, destructive fishing gear, plastics and other marine debris that choke and destroy their habitats. Sea Shepherd opposes the pollution of this fragile ecosystem and also endorses projects that prevent more plastic from entering our waters, like Bubble Buddy.
